Door-to-Door Fund Drive Launched For News Review

Under a cloudless sky with the Greenbelt Concert Band playing, the Freedom of the Press fund drive got off to a rousing start as statements of support were received from State Senator Edward Conroy, House Delegate Pauline Menes, and the city council. Chairing last Saturday's kick-off rally was Charles Schwan, co-chairman of the Greenbelt Freedom of the Press Committee, which is conducting the drive.

The purpose of the rally was to secure volunteers for a door-to-door drive for legal funds to defend the Greenbelt News Review against a $2,000,000 suit filed last July by local developer Charles S. Bresler. The Freedom of the Press Committee reported that over 75 persons volunteered their services last week.

The suit charged the newspaper with publishing "recklessly and without reasonable justification or excuse" city council meetings, judicial proceedings, and other material relating to the developer's transactions and negotiations with county and city officials regarding his land holdings in Greenbelt.

The case is now in the active stage of pre-trial discovery during which period evidence is being accumulated for a trial that is scheduled for the fall.

Conroy Supports Paper

Senator Conroy said that it is the local hometown newspaper that provides the chief medium of communication for municipalities. Such newspapers, he said, are often more avidly read than the metropolitan press. He hated to think what would be the consequences if such papers were not in existence.

He noted that most people when faced with a law suit involving large sums of money would have a tendency to back down in the expression of their views. The News Review, he said, has not. On the contrary, he noted, the suit has "stiffened" the backbone of the newspaper.

Delegate Pauline Menes said that the fight in Greenbelt is really much bigger than Greenbelt, affecting the county, the State, and even the Nation. She asserted that the case involves the fundamental issue of freedom of the press which makes it "our fight."

Mayor Edgar Smith said he was proud to be associated with the freedom of the press battle and cited the valuable services that the paper has performed for the community. Councilman Francis White recalled that he had awarded the newspaper the city's commendation upon the paper's 25th anniversary in 1962. "The posture of the newspaper has not changed" since then, he said. Councilman Dick Pilski added that Greenbelt has always rallied around a cause that is just, and that the city will rally around this one, too.

Other speakers were Committee Co-Chairman Albert Herling and former News Review editor Harry Zubkoff, who served from 1956 to 1960. Zubkoff said that dangers to freedom of the press can take many forms. One can be expensive law suits which tax to the maximum the limited financial resources of a small newspaper. Such law suits are also used to intimidate and frighten the press and to discourage volunteers from working on the paper. He urged support for the newspaper in both matters.

Herling stressed the unique character of the News Review as a non-profit volunteer organization. Unlike other newspapers which seek to make profits for owners, Herling said, the News Review seeks only to profit the entire community. He felt certain that Greenbelt would respond with whatever financial means are necessary to defend successfully the libel suit.

GHI BOARD INCUMBENTS RETURNED, NEW RESALE PROPOSAL PASSED

Greenbelt Homes, Inc., members voiced a clear expression of confidence in the present Board majority by returning to office four incumbents and one candidate associated with the majority at last week's election. They also, at the Thursday evening meeting, adopted a Board compromise proposal for the determination of resale price of the larger homes under construction.

High man in the balloting for the board was Jim Smith, who received 68 percent of the vote. He was closely followed by the rest of the slate he ran with — Charles Schwan, Josephine Seay, Norman Weyel, and John O'Reilly — who garnered between 60 and 68 percent of the vote.

Their opponents for the 2-year term on the board mustered between 30 and 34 percent of the vote. Ben Rosenzweig was high man on the losing ticket, which included Norman Charles, William Feller, Robert Crowley, and Norman Kilpatrick.

The winning five now join the present four members of the GHI Board — Nat Shinderman, Steve Polaschik, Katherine Keene and Clifford Simonson — to round out the nine-man board. The organization of the new board and election of officers will take place at the board's regularly scheduled meeting tonight.

Winners in the race for the three-man audit committee were Tom White, Gerald Gough, and Charles Emberger by a margin that did not quite equal the 2-1 majority in the board election.

The members also elected — on Thursday night — the 5-man nom-

City Council Adopts Budget; Lowers Property Tax by 12¢

by Al Skolnik

A municipal budget for 1967-68 calling for expenditures of $696,200 and a cut in the real estate property tax of 12 cents per $100 assessed valuation was adopted by city council at a special meeting on Monday, June 5.

The new tax rate of $0.87 per $100 was achieved primarily through a cut in capital improvements and an upward revision of revenues from sources other than the real estate tax. Among the capital improvement casualties were the construction of new tennis courts, construction of a comfort station at the lake, the widening of Woodland Way, and new poles for softball field lights. (These items would have cost an estimated $26,500.)

Offsetting the elimination of these items was the insertion of a new $40,000 program to renovate Center Mall, half of which would be financed through a special assessment against the property owners in the Center. An additional sum of $2,500 was budgeted for seven new street lights on Centerway.

Mayor Explains Deletions

Mayor Edgar Smith explained that the council had weighed priorities and decided that no item needed more work at this time than the Center Mall. Moreover, plans had already been drawn up by planners for the renovation of the mall, whereas plans for the park area at the lake, including the newly acquired 20 acres, had not yet been prepared. Such park plans, he felt, were needed before the city went ahead with new tennis courts, a comfort station, new ball parks, etc. Councilman Bill Hoff said that he thought the tennis court item should have been left in the budget, but he added he obviously didn't have the votes.

The budget as adopted was 15.7 percent higher than the current year's appropriations of $601,750, but was $15,800 lower than the budget proposed by City Manager James K. Giese. The council estimated that revenues from other real estate property taxes would total $375,800, as it raised estimates of the city's share of the state income tax by $10,000 and the city's share of motor vehicle license fees by $1,000. The council also raised its estimates of revenue from self-supporting recreation programs by $5,000 and included the $20,000 assessment for renovation of the Center Mall, mentioned above, to be financed through issuance of bonds.

Subtracting the $375,800 in non-real-estate revenue from total expenditures of $696,200 leaves $320,400 to be raised through the real estate property tax rate. Applying this amount to an estimated assessed valuation (average amount) of $37 million yields a tax rate of $0.87 per $100 assessed valuation. This is the lowest tax rate in the history of Greenbelt since its divorce from the federal government.

Major Items Changed

Additional major expenditure changes made by council in the budget proposed by Giese included the following:

- (1) Increase in annual salary of mayor from $1,250 to $1,800 and of councilmen from $1,000 to $1,500, effective with the election of the new council in September. Included also was an increase of 11 percent in the city manager's salary.

(2) Authorization for hiring up to 14 policemen — one less than requested by the city manager, but one above present authorized strength, thus reducing the budget by $6,000. A cut in miscellaneous police department items produced another $750 drop, but $2,800 was left intact for the purchase of a third marked squad car.

(3) Reduction from $29,000 to $7,500 for reconstruction of Parkway Road.

(4) Reduction from $6,000 to

A Suggestion

During the last two weeks of the Greenbelt Homes, Inc. election campaign for board of directors, numerous flyers and documents were issued regarding complex low-interest government financing programs for new construction. The net result was confusion, as voters were besieged with conflicting statements. The heat of the campaign hardly permitted a cool detached look at the situation.

Now that the campaign is over, we think it advisable that GHI make a study in depth to ascertain the facts regarding these government programs for cooperatives which are often designated as 221 (d) (3) and 213 programs. We would suggest a blue ribbon commission be appointed, not necessarily to reach conclusions, but at least to gather the facts so that the membership and the board would be able to evaluate all the factors involved in any decisions.

For example, we think the commission could establish once and for all the conditions under which the corporation could qualify for 221 (d) (3) below-market interest rate program. It could determine how feasible these conditions are and what steps the corporation would have to take internally and externally to qualify. It should discuss the extent to which these new programs might affect the corporate structure, individual members' equities, and related corporation problems.

In short, we would like to see an objective summary of the implications, advantages and disadvantages of seeking Federal housing aid from the standpoint of the corporation, the membership, and the city of Greenbelt.

Plenty of Verve

The Greenbelt Concert Band may not have 76 trombones in its ensemble, but no one noticed the lack. With both spirit and talent working for them, they performed at the rally Saturday with plenty of verve.

No one present in the crowd that afternoon would endorse more heartily than the News Review staff Senator Conroy's affirmation of the vital importance of a community newspaper in the growth of a municipality. Yet as we tapped our feet we had to concede that when it comes to fostering civic spirit, nothing outdoes the home-town band.

inations and elections committee. Out of a field of 9 candidates nominated from the floor, the following were elected by secret ballot: Denise Sutton, Darwin Beck, George Adams, Elizabeth Allen, and Bertram Donn.

The 585 votes cast in last week's election was the second highest in GHI's history. The highest was 903 in the 1963 election. Some 15 votes were cast by proxy. There are about 1,500 GHI members.

Resale Policy

The 200 members who attended Thursday night's meeting heard a three-hour discussion on the sale and resale policy for the four free-standing homes now being constructed on Northway, Woodland Way, and Hillside and for the 25 townhouses scheduled for the tract opposite the North End School.

Adopted finally by a 58 to 45 vote was the board proposal for determining the resale price of the new homes, after two key amendments were defeated.

The first, which called for including the market value of the land in the original sale price of the house, was rejected by a voice vote. The board proposal excludes the cost of the land from the original sale price.

The second amendment — which took the form of a substitute motion — was similar to the proposal backed by the losing ticket at the April 6 special membership meeting. This proposal called for a return to the selling member of his paid-in equity (down payment and principal payments on the mortgage), adjusted for percentage change in price levels between dates of purchase and resale as reflected in the housing price index. New features added included an allowance for depreciation and for improvements.

This motion was defeated 60 to 35.

The Board proposal adopted intact by the membership sets the original sale price to include all building and related costs with no charge for the land. The member will share in any appreciation or depreciation, when he sells, in accordance with a formula governed by the ratio of the original price to the appraisal at the time of his purchase.

However, any appreciation will first have deducted the savings in mortgage interest the member realized because the unit was made available to him at less than market price. This is the feature that distinguishes this proposal from the original board proposal and represents the board's accommodation to criticism voiced at the April 6 membership meeting.

Other features of the motion were that the corporation retain title to the land, that the member-purchaser be required to make a minimum down payment of 10 percent, and that no increase in selling price be permitted if resale occurs within two years of purchase. Also included were provisions that all appraisal costs be charged the member and that the house be resold to the member highest on the priority list at the price received by the selling member.

Baptist Deacons Ordained

National Park Service Plans For Greenbelt Park Revealed

Greenbelt's Parks and Recreation Advisory Board (formerly the Recreation Advisory Board) met on May 31 to hear a talk on Greenbelt Regional Park by Harold R. Jones of the National Park Service. Jones, who is the Maryland area's superintendent, revealed the plans of the Department of the Interior for completing the park as a potential demonstration project to serve as a model for the development of national parklands near other large cities.

Increased emphasis will be placed on widespread community use of Greenbelt park. An 18-hole golf course of 150 acres is planned for the area east of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway, with an adjoining clubhouse complex to include a restaurant, a putting green, and a 2-pool swimming center and bathhouse.

A separate complex may eventually include 8 tennis courts, 10 shuffleboard areas, 4 basketball courts, a miniature golf course, a bicycle rental concession, a canteen and lunch area, a shelter house, three softball fields, children's playground, a Little League ballfield, and some open play fields.

Planned for the west side of the park are a hostel area, group camping grounds, and an amphitheater to orient campers on the highlights of the nation's capital.

Additional facilities may include softball fields, volleyball and basketball courts, and a horseback riding concession. The trails for hiking, riding, and cycling will not intersect.

Jones commented that some of the activities of a more commercial type may not come into existence, if no private concessionaires are available, unless Congress decides to appropriate additional funds.

Jones mentioned that it may not be too late to make changes if Greenbelt's Parks and Recreation Advisory Board has any recommendations. Greenbelt citizens with suggestions may bring them to the attention of the Board while there is still time.

The Board re-elected Hugh D. Jascourt as chairman and Recreation Director Darald Lofgren as secretary. Don King, a resident of Greenbelt, for 14 years and a former director of the Babe Ruth League, is the newly-elected vice-president of the group.

Drake-Beale

Mr. and Mrs. Rolland E. Drake of College Park are pleased to announce the marriage of their daughter, Frances Kay, to W. Joseph Beale, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard J. Beale of Greenbelt on June 3 in Greenbelt Community Church with Rev. Kenneth Wyatt officiating. A reception was held at the College Park American Legion Hall. The bride is a graduate of Washington School for Secretaries and the groom is attending the University of Maryland. The couple will reside in Greenbelt.

JEWISH CENTER DEDICATES TORAH

An age-old ceremony was re-enacted in Greenbelt on June 4 when a newly acquired Torah or religious scroll was borne in solemn procession to the Jewish Community Center on Ridge Road and Westway and dedicated in a 2-hour ceremony. Among the dignitaries in attendance were Representative Hervey Machen, state senators and delegates, and city leaders headed by Mayor Edgar Smith.

The procession down Ridge Road included synagogue leaders, Sunday School children, and many members of the congregation. The Torah, which contains the Five Books of Moses, was protected by a canopy.

The Torah is a hand-written, 100-year-old Czechoslovakian relic from a synagogue destroyed by the Nazis. The Torah, found its way to a warehouse in Prague. There it moldered for many years as part of a collection of Jewish artifacts destined by the Nazis to become the nucleus of curiosities of the Jewish civilization they had destroyed.

The Torah changed hands several times after the Allies invaded Prague. Eventually it was restored and brought to the J.C.C. through the generosity of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Mollerick and other members of the congregation. It does not belong to the Greenbelt synagogue, but has been loaned in perpetuity. The title remains with the Jewish people in general, and the Torah is considered a memorial to those who perished in Europe.

Corrects Fire Story

To the Editor

I have just finished reading the article in the News Review about the fire, in Springhill Lake on Memorial Day. The entire first paragraph is completely wrong. First, the alarm was called directly to Greenbelt Police Dispatcher at 7:44 p.m., therefore it would have been impossible for the units from Berwyn Heights to get there at 7:15 p.m. Also you give the impression that the Berwyn Heights Fire Dept. was the only dept. to respond on the initial alarm. This is also incorrect. The initial alarm was put out as a (what is known in the fire service) box alarm. The following companies all responded at the same time. Berwyn Heights, Branchville, Greenbelt, Riverdale, & Riverdale Heights; also there were two ladder trucks, one from College Park & the other from Chillum-Adelphi; also a rescue squad truck from Cottage City.

The fireboard put the call out at 7:47 p.m. and the first pumper which, by the way, was from Branchville, was on the scene less than two minutes later.

Perhaps you think that this matter is trivial but I feel that if you are going to report the news then you should do it correctly. You really don't have to print this letter but I do feel that you should correct the story.

CONGRATULATIONS

To the Editor

The people have spoken and we enthusiastically congratulate the winning incumbent slate.

Both groups of candidates strongly supported the construction of larger homes for larger families. We presented a program for low cost housing which the membership has clearly rejected.

The Board's program has now received the mandate of the membership. Being in full agreement on the urgent need for larger homes, we now join with the majority in offering to the board our whole-hearted support and assistance. Let the construction begin!

Citizen Cooperation

To the Editor:

The amount of trash on the ground in the city's parks is growing as the weather gets better. The wooded area behind the Candy Cane Village last Sunday was made almost unusable by trash and garbage dumped out of the receptacles there, and by great quantities of broken glass.

I have just written to the city manager and have urged him to have trash in the parks picked up on summer weekends, and I suggest that all citizens who feel this way do likewise.

But only citizen cooperation can really solve this problem. Children often respond well to a suggestion that they retrieve trash they have thrown on the ground — some of them may never before have been told such a thing. Adults are not so amenable to such treatment, unfortunately.

The 2c refund on some glass bottles is no longer enough to guarantee that they will be picked up by someone. I am asking local storeowners whether they could limit their by-the-drink sales of soft drinks to cans — at least cans cannot be broken. The support of other like-minded citizens for such a request would be welcome.

Peter W. Murphy

Cancer Aid Carnival

Cancer Aid Carnival is scheduled for weekday evenings from June 5 to 17 at the Beltway Plaza (near S. Klein on the Square). The carnival will feature adult rides, children's rides, games of chance, and refreshments from 7 to 11 p.m.

All proceeds will aid Cancer research.

Expo '67

Expo '67, held this year in Montreal, will probably be remembered as one of the more successful world expositions ever staged. Having visited it recently with the Greenbelt travel club — as a matter of fact, these lines are being written aboard the bus, on our long trip back home — we hereby offer a few notes and impressions, of interest to those readers thinking about a visit.

First of all - as has already been noted - it is a great show: any resemblance to New York's World Fair makes the latter stand out as poor second. Expo '67 is not only colorful and gay, it has a marked international flavor, is dominated by good taste and ingenuity and is remarkably well organized. Visiting it will be as enjoyable to adults as it will be to juveniles.

Unfortunately, there is such a thing as too many superlative attractions, and one is well advised to bring comfortable shoes and a considerable amount of physical stamina to the fair, for in spite of the varied and efficient transportation available - subway, elevated train, bus, monorail, motorboat, pedicab and hovercraft - one can expect a great deal of walking on the fairgrounds. Furthermore, most major exhibits have long waiting lines, so that the visitor may look forward to spending a great amount of time on foot. A small folding stool may be a worthwhile item to carry along.

In our case, our feet felt completely worn out after two days and judging by the number of visitors sprawled on lawns and embankments, this kind of misery has a lot of company. So if you plan your visit around a 7-day "Passport" - take it easy. With a longer stay at the fair, you may be able to visit some of the "hard to see" exhibits - such as the Czech pavilion, said to be the best of the lot, which requires a wait of about 3 hours - but make sure that fun doesn't turn into an ordeal.

What to See

For obvious reasons we are in no position to report from first hand about every exhibit. All we can offer, indeed, are some general observations and impressions. The visitor who comes to the fair armed with a long list of exhibits which he has planned to see, may find his final choice considerably modified by the reality of waiting lines, tired feet and general saturation. As a case in point, most of the members of our tour had planned to explore the Czech pavilion, and as far as we know, none did.

The attractions at Expo '67 fall into three categories. First, there are the "thematic" pavilions, describing the achievements of mankind. These bear names such as "Man the Creator," "Man the Explorer" and "Man the Provider" and include "Habitat '67" - a creation in avant-garde architecture - and "Labyrinth," a display of modern showmanship.

Secondly, there's what probably rates as the main attraction of Expo '67 - the national pavilions. Outstanding among these - in size, in length of waiting lines and in the interest they create - are those of the U.S. and of the U.S.S.R., facing each other across a branch of the St. Lawrence river. The U.S. Pavilion is a huge translucent sphere, sparsely filled with all things American - decoy ducks, Raggedy Ann dolls, portraits of film stars, pop art and, of course, the inevitable spaceflight hardware. Whether this is the kind of display which would give a visiting Frenchman or Mexican a realistic impression of the American spirit is, at best, subject to dispute, but visitors from the U.S. will find it interesting.

Where the U.S. pavilion is sparse, the Russian one is chock-full of scientific apparatus, including working models of intricate machinery and a nonworking one of what a thermonuclear power generator might look like, if and when it is invented. It appears to be designed to snow the visitor under an avalanche of impressions, and one must say it does a pretty thorough job of it.

France, England, Germany and Canada also have large pavilions, and most other nations are represented, the big exception being the major part of Latin America.

Mexico displays glittering cathedral ornaments, Canadian Indians give a touching view of the red man's problem in what is now the white man's land, Australia has a pitiful of kangaroos and Ethiopia a pair of lion cubs which, apparently, don't mind at all the big crowd milling around their cage. We enjoyed all these - but there's much, much more besides.

There is also at the fair a controversial Christian pavilion which, we were told, attempts to present the spirit of Christianity and its attitude to mankind, and a traditional, tasteful pavilion of Judaism, sponsored by the Jewish community in Montreal. In addition, you'll find a Viennese nursery school in the Montessori tradition, with large windows enabling one to watch the children at play. If, like us, you have a family member aged 3 to 6, and if you arrive early enough and pay $5 for the privilege, you can have him or her become part of this show for the day. There also exists a larger nursery school charging the same fee (or half of it for half a day), but it is not on open display.

The third category is the amusements: these are mainly located in a separate area called La Ronde - though the boat rides, miniature monorails, puppet show and concerts in the main exhibition area may also be counted in this class. One show in La Ronde that should not be missed is Laterna Magika, an ingenious and whimsical Czech blend of cinema and theatre. Shows are every hour on the half hour, tickets should be purchased slightly in advance, and there are two different shows, one given until 5:30 and a different one from 6:30 on.

Other amusements available to visitors at La Ronde include the "flume ride" - a watery roller-coaster - and the French "Village." A slowly rotating elevator riding on a 320 ft. shaft - "La Spirale" - provides visitors with an overall view of the exposition.

Preparation

The most useful item in preparing for a visit is the official guide to Expo '67, available not only at the fair but also in many drug-stores throughout the U.S. Studying it ahead of time will acquaint the visitors with the various exhibits and save valuable time at the exposition itself. The guide also contains useful information about special events during the fair, transportation and the reservation of lodging accommodations. Such a reservation is advisable - unless one plans to beat the sky-high prices by camping: looking from the highway, it seemed to us that quite a few farmers have converted their fields into instant campgrounds within a few miles of the exposition.

Food at Expo, as one might expect, is not cheap. Many pavilions include a restaurant serving national dishes, and a visitor wishing to sample them will find it most convenient to do so at lunchtime. Dinnertime is a mad scramble: if you insist on a dignified and unhurried dinner at Expo, we suggest a fast subway ride to downtown Montreal.

Souvenirs also tend to be expensive and inevitably, many are standard souvenir fare, with only the inscription changed for the occasion. Some items outside this category are sets of ashtrays or glasses with Expo scenes on them and a brooch in the shape of the Expo emblem, such as is worn by hostesses at the fair. You can also buy a can full of "Expo '67 air" for 69 cents, and the banks on the fairgrounds can provide you with a set of Canadian coins especially minted for Canada's centennial, which the exposition marks.

You also may buy at the fair artwork and handicrafts from many nations all over the world. Some of it is very good and, as might be guessed, the good also tends to be costly. Such a purchase will be rarely made on sheer impulse - so, if you are prepared to pay $25 or more for a really distinctive souvenir, you may begin at home by selecting the place at which you plan to display it, and then get your Eskimo stone carving, Tunisian brasswork or Italian glassware at one of the many gift shops at Expo '67.

This short review cannot pretend to be a complete description of Expo '67 or even of what we saw there during our brief, hurried visit. We could have gone on in our description, but we won't even try, for Expo '67, like so many things, has to be seen to be enjoyed, and enjoyed to be believed.

Now— U. S. Savings Bonds Pay More Interest

4.15% when held to maturity

Higher interest on the Bonds you already own, too!

U.S. Savings Bonds are a better way to save than ever

Because now all Series E and Series H Bonds bought after December 1, 1965, will earn the new, higher interest rate of 4.15% when held to maturity. That's only 7 years for Series E — 9 months quicker than before. All H Bond interest checks will be larger beginning in June 1966.

And your outstanding bonds will earn more, too, from now on. So, you don't have to cash in your present Bonds to get the attractive new rate. Ask about buying Bonds where you work or bank. For America's future. And yours.

The U.S. Government does not pay for this advertisement. It is presented as a public service in cooperation with the Treasury Department and The Advertising Council.

"Today, none of us can remain aloof on the sidelines."

"Today, above all, is a time for all Americans to rededicate themselves to the spirit that animated the Minutemen of Concord—who serve as a symbol of the Savings Bond program. For today, as at the founding of our nation, it is freedom which is again at stake. Not all of us are called upon to fight in the jungles of Vietnam, but while our men are there, in the front lines of a distant land, none of us can remain aloof on the sidelines. We must all do our share—in every way we can—to support our men in Vietnam. One sure way is open to all Americans through the Savings Bond program."

Junior Highlights

by Laura Rexon

This year, as in past years, students will be given an opportunity to go to Hershey, Pennsylvania. Although not a school-sponsored trip, students find this event ideal for renewing old friendships, as well as making new ones. The trip is scheduled for June 21, with departure from the school scheduled at 9:45 a.m. and the return to the school between 11 and 11:15 p.m.

Greenbelt Junior High's annual spring concert was held May 25.

In this year's student council election Connie Urquary was elected president; Hal Berman, vice-president; Sue La Rue, secretary; and Debbie Depew, treasurer.

"Pushbutton Panic", the last dance of the year, spun into action last Friday night. Computers were used to match the students with others at the dance. The evening was one of amusement, as students and teachers alike discovered their matches.

Vote for Charles T. McDonald

A Devoted Public Servant

On Tuesday, June 13, the election for delegates to the Maryland Constitutional Convention will be held. This occasion will afford Greenbelters a unique opportunity to honor one of their oldest and most devoted public servants, Charles T. McDonald, who is running for delegate in the 1st District.

Charlie's 15 years of experience as Greenbelt City Manager and as a sought-after consultant and advisor to numerous governmental and private bodies, and his record of unselfish service to our local cooperatives will prove an invaluable asset to the Convention. The Convention needs the services of men of Charlie's character - members willing to put in long hours of research, study and attendance at meetings, in unselfish devotion to the public service. Charlie has proved this quality in all his past posts of service to the community.

There will be a tendency to neglect the June 13 election because of the lack of stirring issues. Charlie will need all the local help he can get, as the 1st District, which he will represent, comprises a very wide territory of which Greenbelt is only a small part.

I, therefore, trust that all Greenbelters will make a very special effort next Tuesday and turn out en masse to honor Charlie at the polls and show the solid appreciation of his fellow citizens for his past services to the community.

Teacher's Association Leader Endorses Green

Thomas J. Johnson, legislative chairman of the Maryland State Teacher's Association, today announced his endorsement of the candidacy of Leo E. Green for delegate to the Constitutional Convention. In endorsing Green, Johnson stated: "Leo Green has impressed me and many of my fellow teachers with his knowledge of and sympathy toward the need to safeguard the interests of education in the rewriting of our state constitution. His keen perception of the total concept of the purpose for which the convention is to serve has impressed the many teachers in the First Legislative District with whom he has spoken, and I am happy to join them in supporting an outstanding candidate for a most sensitive role. His broad base of experience gives him an enviable framework of reference to take to the convention as a delegate. Teachers, parents, and all citizens in our First District are indeed fortunate in being able to support this outstanding candidate, Leo Green."
